

EFF: Dice Long Word List

Generated: May 12, 2023

Introduction

This document uses the EFF’s long word list, intended for passphrase generation using 5 dice. If you have safe access to the internet, I advise you read their input on it (<https://www.eff.org/dice>), but I repeat some instructions for use here in what may be a physical copy.

Background

I enjoy physical things and the notion of generating a passphrase whilst being totally offline, sans software is a particularly safe method.

This document takes the EFF’s long word list and formats it using L^AT_EX along with a number of standard packages. I have tried to optimise for a page-efficient A5-size document that is well formatted and somewhat easy to navigate even in printed form.

If you have interest in more documents being made like this (for different word lists, perhaps), or have input on how to improve this document, you can find my email address and GPG key at: <https://stev.top>.

Requirements and Use

This list is intended to be used with five dice.

1. One should roll five dice si-

2. For example, you may have rolled, reading left-to-right, 2,4,1,1,2.
3. Then you may check (nearer the end of the section) from page 12 onwards to find in place 24112 the word “dork”. This is the first word of your passphrase that you can write down.
4. Repeat the above steps until you have (ideally) six words generated in this fashion, and choose a character to string each word together with.

You have now successfully generated a complete passphrase!
